ABSTRACT

Presenting data on student persistence at Rancho Santiago College (RSC), in California, through fall 1993, this three-part report presents longitudinal semester-to-semester persistence rates for 1983-1993; course completion rates, including grade and withdrawal distributions for every course and department for fall 1993; and data on associate degrees and certificates awarded through the 1992-93 academic year. Highlighted findings include the following: (1) for new students in fall 1993, 56% persisted to a second semester, an all-time high for RSC; (2) for the initial group studied at RSC in 1983, 23% were still enrolled four semesters later, 18% were still enrolled five semesters later, and 5% were still active twelve semesters later; (3) students who enrolled in fall 1993 and reported their goal as transfer with an Associate degree showed a persistence rate of 66% one semester later, while students enrolled for personal interests had a 29% return rate; (4) for fall 1993, 66% of all course enrollments resulted in successful completion; (5) fall 1993 completion rates were 59% for Hispanics, 72% for Asians, 60% for African-Americans, and 68%5 for Whites; (6) in 1992-93, 971 degrees were awarded, the largest number ever; (7) the time taken to earn a degree decreased dramatically over the past three years, with 84% of the 1992-93 graduates attending RSC four semesters or less; and (8) 21% of the 1992-93 graduates were Asian and 17% were Hispanic, both representing an increase over the past 5 years. This annual RSC Research Department Report provides:

- Part I: Semester-To-Semester Persistence Rates - Overview 2
  - for cohorts of new RSC entering students from Fall 1983 through Fall 1993 4
  - by educational goal and ethnicity 6
  - for matriculated and non-matriculated students 14

- Part II: Course Completion Rates - Overview 18
  - Student Equity Plan chart/rates by ethnicity and goals 19
  - rates by course and department 20

- Part III: Degrees and Certificates Awarded - Overview 52
  - degree by major 53
  - characteristics of degree recipients 56
  - certificate by major 58
  - characteristics of certificate recipients 60

PART I

SEMESTER-TO-SEMESTER PERSISTENCE RATES
ALL STUDENTS

OVERVIEW OF PART I FINDINGS
• PERSISTENCE •

- Persistence to a second semester is at an all-time high, 56% for the cohort of new (first time at any college) RSC Fall 1993 students (Table 1-1 and Graph 1-1). Persistence rates began to increase with the Fall 1989 group. Persistence rates are also greater for third-, fourth-, and fifth-semester persistence than they were in the 1980's. The question is whether this is due to the recession and/or enhanced college support programs.

- Of the students who have enrolled in RSC for a given fall semester for the past 11 years, 37 to 56% of them return the following Spring, and 23 to 36% remain active one year, or two semesters, later. For the initial 1983 group (cohort) of new RSC students, 23% were still enrolled four semesters later, 18% remain active five semesters later, and 5% are in attendance twelve semesters after first enrolling (Table 1-1). Persistence rates for the other fall semester cohorts represent similar trends.

- After the initial relatively large attrition between the first and second semesters of attendance, the persistence rates decline more gradually. This trend is consistent with all cohorts studied (Table 1-1).

- It is important to consider persistence rates of students with different educational goals. Students who enrolled in Fall 1993 and who reported that their goal is to "transfer with an AA degree" show a persistence rate of 66% one semester later. On the other hand, students who enrolled for personal interest have a 29% rate one semester later (Table 1-2).

- Asian students demonstrate high persistence rates. Persistence rates of African-American students are low and should be of concern (Table 1-2).

- From Tables 1-13 and 1-14 it can be seen that persistence rates of EOPS students and students who receive financial aid are clearly the highest of any group shown and their persistence rates continue high in subsequent semesters.

- Compared to the general student population, matriculated students demonstrated much greater persistence rates. For example, of the 1,833 matriculated students enrolling in Fall 1988, 62% were active the following spring. Forty-six percent of the original group were active in Fall 1989, and 18% were still active in Fall 1992. These rates are greater than the persistence rates for non-matriculated students and this difference is maintained over time (Table 1-15).

- Persistence rates of matriculated students have increased since 1988. The 1993 cohort continues to demonstrate that those who have participated in matriculation services have higher persistence rates than those who have not, in all goal categories (Table 1-16).

- For this comparison, however, it is important to compare similar groups. Most RSC students who receive matriculation services have been found to be transfer-objective students. When comparing non-matriculated to matriculated students of the Fall 1988 transfer-objective cohort, it can be seen that students who received matriculation services persisted to a second semester at significantly higher rates (67%) than the 1988 student cohort who had not received services (39%). This difference has continued with subsequent cohorts (Table 1-16).

- Transfer-objective matriculated students also have much greater third semester persistence rates than non-matriculated students with a transfer objective, indicating that a majority of these students were well on their way to achieving their goal. Table 1-16 shows those rates at 25% for non-matriculated students in the 1988 cohort compared to 58% for those who had received matriculation services. This difference is also exhibited by the Fall 1989, 1990, 1991, Fall 1992 groups.

The following are the RSC criteria by which a student is considered non-exempt from receiving matriculation services:

- Any student who plans to complete 12 units at Rancho Santiago College either this semester or in future semesters, or
- Plans to enroll in an English composition, reading, English as a Second Language (ESL), or math course, or
- Plans to obtain an Associate Degree, occupational certificate, or transfer to a four-year college or university.

Beginning with Fall 1988, students who were identified as having met one or more of the above criteria, and who had a needs assessment form completed, were identified as "matriculated students" for this portion of the study. All other students are grouped as "non-matriculated".

Since matriculated students have been assessed, advised and placed in appropriate courses, it was hoped that they would have higher persistence rates than students not receiving those services. In order to test that notion, the persistence of the two groups, matriculated and non-matriculated, are being tracked for comparative purposes.

PART II

COURSE COMPLETION RATES

OVERVIEW OF PART II FINDINGS
• COURSE COMPLETION •

- Table 2-1 shows that, in Fall 1993, 66% of all course enrollments resulted in successful completion, A, B, C, or Cr. This means that 34% of all course grades were D, F, NCr, or W.

- The completion rate for all courses in which Hispanic students were enrolled was 59%, for Asians 72%, African-American's 60%, and Whites 68%.

- This table is taken from RSC's Student Equity Plan, for which successful course completion is one of five measures to be used to measure academic equity. It can be seen that the college's goal is to increase successful course completion to 75% by 2000.

- Table 2-2 shows grade distributions for Fall 1993 for every course and department.

Course Completion

The ratio of the number of courses that students successfully complete (A,B,C,Cr) to the number of courses in which students are enrolled on the census day of the term. (RSC definition)

	Female	Disabled[1]	Hispanic	Asian	African-American	White	TOTAL
Fall 1993	67%		59%	72%	60%	68%	66%

RSC Goal: 1) To increase completion rates five percentage points for each group by 1996, 2) to reduce the difference among groups to a maximum of two percentage points by 1998, 3) to achieve 75% aggregate completion by 2000, and 4) to maintain standards and rigor throughout the process.

[1] We are still developing this data and waiting for operational definitions from the Chancellor's Office.

PART III

DEGREES AND CERTIFICATES AWARDED

OVERVIEW OF PART III FINDINGS
* DEGREES AND CERTIFICATES *

- Table 3-1 shows that in 1992-93, 971 A.A. degrees were awarded, and this is the largest number ever awarded. The largest number of degrees were in Liberal Arts, and the second largest were in Business Administration.

- Tables 3-2 through 3-5 show age, ethnicity, and gender characteristics of graduates and the number of semesters graduates attended RSC. "Time-to-degree" has decreased dramatically over the past three years; for 1992-93 graduates, 84% had attended RSC four semesters or less. (We do not know if they had attended another college prior to enrolling at RSC or were enrolled concurrently at another college.) (Table 3-3).

- The percentages of Hispanic and Asian graduates are increasing (Table 3-5), and the largest percentage of graduates is in the "under 24 years of age" range (Table 3-2).

- In 1992-93, the largest number of certificates was also awarded, 403; and 71 were in Office Technology, which represents a great increase for that department over 1991-92.

- "Time-to-certificate" was most often four semesters or less, and the age range of recipients is older than that for A.A. degree-earners, with the largest percentage, 35% being in the 30-39 years range.
